

Should I pursue a career in leadership?

Yes	No
I am passionate about achieving exceptional organizational results.	I am primarily interested in my individual results.
I prefer to work as part of a team.	I prefer to work alone.
I am willing to blend my work and personal lives.	I want to create a bright line between my personal and work lives.
I don't need for others to like me.	I need to have others like me.
I enjoy the challenge of dealing with conflict.	I cannot stand conflict.
I am willing to be on call 24/7/365.	I want to work shifts, and when I am off, I want to be completely off.
I don't need credit or recognition.	I want to be recognized for what I accomplish.
I expect to be criticized daily.	I cannot stand to be criticized.
I am willing for my mistakes to be public.	I want to keep my mistakes private.
I can live with little or no immediate gratification.	I need immediate gratification.
I understand that only my brain can make me upset.	Other people make me upset.
I understand that leaders have little or no control and I am fine with that.	I need to be in control.
I cannot reasonably expect others what needs to be done until I have made my expectations clear.	I expect others to see what needs to be done and just do it.
I am willing more than my share.	It is not fair for others to expect me more than they do.
I find people fascinating.	I find people annoying.
I love problems.	I hate problems.
I don't mind being blamed for things that are not my fault.	I can't stand being blamed for things that are not my fault.
I understand that becoming angry is a leadership failure.	I believe I have every right to become angry when things don't go my way.
I am not entitled to special treatment as a leader.	I am entitled to special treatment as a leader.
I want to feel uncomfortable.	I want to feel comfortable.
I like uncertainty.	I need certainty.
I am willing to be held accountable for what others do or don't do.	I am only willing to be accountable for myself.
